Thomas Javens, aged 75, and Mercy Willis, aged 74, who had just been married at Rowley, Staffordshire, first met while drawing their old age pensions at a Post Office.

It was stated at an inquest on Thomas Wilson, of Swinton, Manchester, that, after obtaining a separation order, his wife returned home and found him lying dead in bed.

Inexhaustible good nature is the most precious gift of Heaven, spreading itself like oil over the troubled sea of life, and keeping the mind smooth and equable in the roughest weather.

One cannot in an hour gain control over a moody temper that has had its sway for years, but one can learn to control it, and in time can come to regard it as selfishness or vulgarity.

Advices received from Sakhalin report that many deaths have occurred there from smallpox. At one village in the Russian portion of the island the entire population, with the exception of one old man, has died from the disease.

For many years there has been an establishment in the City of London bearing the Dickensian title of "Dombey and Son." Another firm of London publishers, seeking novelty in nomenclature of this sort with "Messrs Lares and Penates."

Sir Alexander Lawrence, who has been selected by the Liberal Executive of the West Norwood Division, offered, by way of apology for arriving late at a meeting there, to sing a song and forthwith rendered a rollicking Somerset hunting song.

The Rev. F. H. Gillingham, the Essex cricketer, preached at Whitchurch, said—"If you ladies will only go home and think out some good temperance drink—not lemonade and ginger pop—it will be the greatest blessing for the cause of temperance that any one has yet accomplished."

The North Tipperary County Council has granted the next-of-kin of two brothers buried within the gaol right to enter the grounds of the disused prison to exhume the bodies. The two brothers were hanged in 1855 for a crime of which, said the applicant's solicitor, it was well known that they were innocent.

The habit of reading at meals is to be condemned, and more particularly when it has grown to one of actual study, and when the reader endeavours to gain knowledge and to save time at his meals. Digestion is always best served when the mind is free from care and when the physical process of our frames are left to discharge their work free from nervous tension.

The report of early snow on Mars which has been made by Professor Lowell, director of the Lowell Observatory, Arizona, will be received with considerable interest by astronomers, for it is exceptionally early for the Red Planet. Astronomers, however, Professor has for a number of years made a careful study of the planet, and once sent an expedition to Arizona to observe it.

The following conversation actually occurred in a Yorkshire school some little time ago:—Schoolmaster (Hesse, teacher, is the King's birthday yesterday." Teacher—"I am very pleased to learn that you know it." Schoolboy—"Did it die, then?" Teacher—"Sixty-eight years." Scholar—"Then it will be only another two years before the King will be able to have the old age pension."

Apropos of the "Julia Bureau," of Mr Stead, a writer in the Jewish Chronicle says: Poor people have not been free from a disposition towards the necromantic art. It was probably learnt by Jews from the ancient Persians, and many instances occur of its practice in both Bible and Talmudic times. The incident of the Witch of Endor, when Samuel by means of that lady and her "Teraphim" was invoked for Saul's benefit, is the classic example.

English cathedrals now possess many Deans who have reached an extreme and, in most cases, says the Church Family Newspaper, a vigorous old age. St Paul's, in London, has a nonagenarian; York, Durham, Exeter, and Lincoln have octogenarians; while Canterbury, Lincoln, Chester, Ripon, Salisbury, Carlisle, Wells, Hereford, Bristol, Gloucester, Rochester, and Windsor have septuagenarians. Thus seventeen of the English Deans are upwards of seventy years of age.

For the luncheon which followed the opening of the new dock at Swansea, Messrs J. Lyons & Co. were caterers. A special train carrying a staff of over 400 waiters, cooks, &c., was sent from London to secure the feast, which consisted of 30 cases of wine, 75 boxes of cigars, 350 lobsters, 320 soles, 250 pheasants, 70 pairs of ducks, 1000 hams, 320 Surrey fowls, 32 York hams, 75 tongues, 110 lbs. pressed beef, 310 dishes of jellies, creams, &c., 2 cases of Muscat grapes, 2520 apples, bananas, and pears.

"Paisley Flour" scones and cakes are so very light that children may eat and enjoy them without fear of digestive troubles. No leavings at the table when "PAISLEY FLOUR," the sure raising powder, is used.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Bank Clerk's Sentence.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—It was with the utmost satisfaction that I read several of my friends in your issue of this evening expressed by "Here and There" in your last night's issue anent the unfortunate young bank clerk who has been sentenced to six years' penal servitude.

I think if ever there was a case deserving of public sympathy this is one, and if it is possible for our Home Secretary to remit the process of death for murder surely it lies in his power to intervene in such cases as this. I understand a petition signed by general public would have any effect, if, for one, will only be too glad to do my full share of the work in getting the petition drawn up and distributed for signatures.—I am, &c.,

Dundee, 24th Nov., 1909. MERCY.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—Your timely article on the underpaid Scottish bank clerk will be welcomed by all who wish to see labour getting its proper reward.

The particular case of the unhappy youth who embezzled about £6000 is worth some serious consideration. Here is a gentlemanly fellow, aged 22 years, the winner of honours, who is regarded with the munificent salary of £80 per annum after six or seven years' service. He is placed in such a responsible position that it is possible to help himself to such huge sums as he did. Well, he is more dined against than sinning. He has been sentenced at the High Court to six years' penal servitude, and it might be asked if the Secretary for Scotland should be petitioned to reduce the sentence.

There is a higher tribunal than the High Court, and that is the bar of public opinion. Before it stand, finally, the shadowy figures who lured the young man on to such foolish and criminal speculation, and, secondly, the bank directors, who paid large salaries and issue glowing balance-sheets at the expense of their underpaid servants.—I am, &c.,

The Motor Accident at Perth.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—I read carefully the account in the "Dundee Evening Telegraph" of the lamentable motor accident at Perth by which the man George Ross unfortunately lost his life. I observed that it was stated in evidence by Captain Grant, one of the two gentlemen who occupied the car on the night of 11th October, that "before drawing up on the bridge at the Edinburgh Road the speed was under twenty-five miles an hour certainly, and without doubt far not so much."

From Captain Grant's evidence the conclusion most people would come to is that the car was being driven at over the speed limit, which, as everybody knows, is twenty miles an hour. Why so many motor owners think it necessary, if, or occasion their chauffeur to break, the law as regards speed I have always failed to comprehend, as for one reason or another they generally contrive to exceed the speed limit, and I cannot see why other motor owners should not do likewise.

As a user of roads, I was extremely glad to read the remarks of the Sheriff regarding the rights of foot passengers to use roads, for many persons seem to imagine that roads are only intended for vehicular traffic, and that passengers have no right to them.—I am, &c.,

Dundee Labour Party.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—In last night's issue of your paper you printed a quotation from the London correspondent of the Scotsman, which, to trust, you will give us the opportunity to deny.

The statement of which we complain is as follows:—I believe that the question of starting a second Labour candidate for Dundee is to be left to the Scottish branch of the Labour party.

This statement is inaccurate, as there is no such organisation in existence as a Scottish branch of the Labour party.

We would also like to point out that the running of Labour candidates in Dundee rests entirely with the Local Labour Representation Committee, who decided months ago that only one candidate should be run under their auspices at the coming general election.

Trusting your readers will accept this explanation of our attitude as the decided policy of our party.—We are, &c.,

ANDREW GOODFELLOW, President.

Carters' Wages.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—I had no intention of entering into a controversy on the above subject, but Bailie Spence's motion tabled for next Council meeting compels me to do so.

Surely it is no wonder beyond the ingenuity of the Town Council to compel contractors doing work for the Corporation to pay the minimum rate of wages, namely, 20s—than it is for them to compel the ratepayers to pay the additional 2d per hour which was granted to the carters prepared to do the unlimited boiling fixed.

If effect of this motion is rescinded as unworkable, in all fairness to the already overburdened ratepayers the old system should prevail.—I am, &c., C. P.

Is It Right?

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—I noticed in your paper the other day that the Town Council are wanting to stop the laddies selling matches and papers on the street, and I must say it put me about very much. There are plenty poor homes in Dundee just now that would be very right if it weren't for the 1s 5d and 2s a day that the boys bring home. I know what it means with work so scarce for the men. I hope somebody will speak for the laddies.—I am, &c., WORKING WOMAN.

Blackscroft.

The Newport Revolt.

To Editor of Evening Telegraph and Post.

Sir,—Your correspondent, William Campbell, has done well in drawing public attention to the attitude of those people who petitioned against the Government's proposal to ship being moored so near the shore at Newport.

The people in Broughty Ferry and Monifieth ought to form an example to other suburbanites. Just think of the inconvenience and even monetary loss sustained in such places. Yet there is no grumble from the patriotic people of Broughty Ferry.

Dundee is to become a base for submarines, and thousands of pounds will be put in circulation among the shopkeepers by the addition to the population. In return for this somebody may be slightly inconvenienced, but it would be absurd if grumbles such as those which come from Newport were allowed to interfere with Admiralty plans.—I am, &c., PATRIOTIC.

ALARMING ACCIDENT AT KIRKCALDY.

An alarming accident occurred this forenoon near Sauchenbush Farm, Bennachy Road, Kirkcaldy. A traction engine belonging to Aberdeen was hauling a threshing machine down Bennachy Road on rose to Balbarton. When it was approaching Sauchenbush Farm the wheels of the threshing machine, owing to the frostbound condition of the road, failed to grip, and skidded. The machine, ran off the roadway, and in the downward career knocked down a lamp post, tore down a portion of a hedge, and demolished a part of a dyke. The engine men and others escaped without injuries.

CALLED HIMSELF MACGREGOR,

AND WAS SO MUCH ATTACHED TO SCOTLAND

That He Wore the Kilt.

Lord Salvesen, in the Court of Session to-day, heard evidence in an action of divorce by Rose Edith Kelly or Skerrett or Crowley, The Vicarage, Camberwell, London, against Alistor Macgregor Crowley, formerly Edward Alistor Crowley, of Boleskine, Foyers, Inverness-shire.

The pursuer said that she was a daughter of the Rev. F. F. Kelly, vicar of Camberwell, and was married in 1897 to Captain F. T. Skerrett, who died two years later. In 1902 she met Crowley in Italy. Paris with her brother, Mr Gerald F. Kelly, an artist, and while there she made the acquaintance of the defender.

Was he then calling himself Alister Crowley?—No; he was then Count Skelliet. She knew, however, that he was a real name was Alistor Edward Crowley. Later he called himself Macgregor in order to identify himself with Scotland. In July, Paris with her brother, Mr Gerald F. Kelly, an artist, and while there she made the acquaintance of the defender.

Was he then calling himself Alister Crowley?—No; he was then Count Skelliet. She knew, however, that he was a real name was Alistor Edward Crowley. Later he called himself Macgregor in order to identify himself with Scotland. In July, Paris with her to Strathpeffer, and again met the defender. He then called himself Alistor Crossley. Shortly after the marriage he bought Boleskine before 1900, and that his home was there. It was a very old historic house. He was much attached to Scotland, and tried to identify himself with it as much as possible. He wore kilts, and that was his dress.

He gave out that he was a Scotsman. At Strathpeffer he asked her to marry him, and she consented. In 1906 he came to London and married in the Scottish fashion, and the marriage was registered in the usual way. In the marriage lines he was described as Alistor MacGregor, but his father's name was given as Edward Crowley. They went abroad for a short time, and subsequently proceeded to Boleskine. Shortly after the marriage defender assumed the title of Laird of Boleskine, and he was very proud of the title. He used to look the name of their estates. The defender was a little eccentric. In June, 1908, the first child was born, a boy, and died in infancy. For a year they travelled in the East, and in 1905 were in Hong Kong. He left her to return home to Boleskine, telling her to go straight back to England. She was annoyed at the way he left her. A child was born in her father's house in September, 1905. Parties then lived at Chislehurst for two years, and in March, 1908, went to Warwick Road, Earl's Court, where the house was taken in her name. Her husband was becoming more eccentric. She left Boleskine in July 21 last. He had abused her, and she consulted her solicitor about his conduct. On August 5 he wrote her from the Pharamond Hotel, Drury Lane, and said he was sorry for the harsh manner he had shown to her. Prior to the marriage he had recently as a Burlington Arcade. The defender was so fearfully interested in the child that he asked her to go to Scotland with it, and take her own son, but she did not go. When she taxed the defender the latter said that the child was deceived by the Devil. She learned the truth she asked the friend why he did not tell her. Mrs Danby, the charwoman, said that the defender about midnight on August 4 rang for two cups of tea, which witness took to the library.

The evidence for the defender was granted, with custody, and aliment for the child.

MARRIAGE WITH DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER

Is Discussed by Perth Presbytery

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Perth Presbytery this afternoon when the Rev. Alex. Henderson, Kinnoull, moderator, presided. The Rev. Robert Oswald, of St Stephens, was, on his motion elected Depute Moderator. Ladykirk, elected convener of the synod accts. before in place of the Rev. A. M. Scadden.

The Rev. F. H. Martin, convener of the Business Committee, in submitting his overture, which related to marriage between a man and his deceased wife's sister, said that the committee had carefully considered that overture in every detail. These marriages had been not prohibited by law but by Christian State, but they were not forbidden in Holy Scripture, and he therefore recommended the overture to the Presbytery.

The Rev. Robert Cooper, Errol, seconded.

The Clerk—I understand no minister is to be compelled to marry.—Laughter.

Mr Martin—The overture simply declares that ministers performing the marriages will not be compelled to do so.

The overture was unanimously approved of.

The second overture, which was also submitted by the Rev. Mr Martin, had reference to increasing the number of elders in the Confession of Faith. He moved disapproval and the Rev. John Ferguson, Aberdalgie, seconded.

The Rev. Robert Oswald, seconded by the Rev. Harry Smith, Tibbermore, moved the reverse of the question.

The Rev. Walter E. Lee, supporting disapproval, said neither of the present formulas were in accordance with Scriptures, and the hope that the Church in its wisdom would find a better. They were willing to vote for what they did not want to do for fear than they could see.

On a vote, disapproval was carried by 17 votes to 7.

ARBROATH WOODTURNER

And His Property.

Mr P. C. Smith, burgh surveyor of Arbroath, presented a petition to Arbroath Sheriff Court to-day for an order to compel Alexander Macdonald, woodturner, Arbroath, to repair or secure an alleged dangerous building on the corner of Ernest Street and Sydney Street.

On the calling of the case, defender, who appeared himself, intimated that the building was in the condition alleged, and averred that he received no police protection. Anyone who lived near had broken into the premises without the police interfering. He indicated he was to make complaint to the Lord Advocate.

His Lordship had already held that his charter was not worth the paper it was written upon.

Sheriff Lee—I do not think so, but all this is irrelevant to the question.

Mr William Robertson, solicitor, who appeared for the Burgh Surveyor, stated that the building was never occupied since 1892, to make an order to the defender if he was satisfied after inquiry that the building was in a dangerous state.

The Sheriff fixed Wednesday next as diet for inquiry.

BURNTISLAND COACH-HIRER SUED.

Proof was fixed by Sheriff Shennan in Kirkcaldy Sheriff Court this forenoon in an action at the instance of Mrs Isabella Ewing against D. Mitchell, coach-hirer, Burntisland, for £20 for loss and injury sustained to her in consequence of being thrown out of a four-wheeled dogcart belonging to defender at Balfour Road, Aberdour, in July last. The defence was a denial of contributory negligence, and defender contended that the damages claimed were excessive.

Agents:—For pursuer—Mr David Usher, solicitor, Kirkcaldy. For defender—Messrs M'Intosh & Brown, solicitors, Burntisland.

POISONED PILLS.

WHO SENT THEM BY POST

To Austrian Army Officers?

Vienna, Tuesday.

All attempts to penetrate the mystery surrounding the poisonous missives addressed to officers of the Austrian General Staff have hitherto proved futile. There is also uneasiness in the suppositions as to the social position occupied by the would-be murderer.

In the course of a long and searching examination enough seems to have been elicited to show that the sender belongs or belonged to the military profession.

Reports from officers in possession of the fatal envelopes increase, and to-day four more officers in provincial garrisons have notified themselves to the War Ministry as recipients.

To-day the War Minister offers a reward of 2000 kroner to any person assisting in the discovery of the writer of the letters. A female assistant at the Post Office reported to-day that a man whom she described as fair, with hair parted at the side, blue eyes, and waxed moustache brought in such envelopes, which he said were large for a section in the box, so that the police have at last some idea of the appearance of the sender or his accomplice.—Daily Telegraph.

DEATH OF AN ARBROATH HEADMASTER.

A Native of Carmyllie.

The death occurred this morning of Mr Jas. Kinnear, headmaster, Keptie Public School, Arbroath. Mr Kinnear has been ill for some time, but a marked improvement took place in his condition, and it was thought that he had recovered from his illness. His health gave way again, however, and his condition became gradually worse, until he passed away at an early hour this morning. Deceased was a native of Carmyllie, where he was born some sixty years ago. He was privately educated at Carmyllie Free Church School, and later at the Normal College, Edinburgh, afterwards receiving an appointment at Lybster, returning to the College at Edinburgh where he graduated. Twenty-eight years ago he came to Arbroath as headmaster to Abbey School. In 1894 he was promoted to the headmastership of Keptie School on the resignation of Mr Frew, and has for the period of fifteen years continued to discharge the duties connected with his position with ability and satisfaction.

Mr Kinnear was a Fellow of the Educational Institute of Scotland, and a most enthusiastic and active member of the Arbroath branch, before which he as recently as a little over two weeks ago delivered an interesting paper. He was a member of the Examiners' Committee, and declined nomination for the presidency of the Educational Institution of Scotland some time ago on account of failing health.

YOUNG ITALIAN

Gets Seven Years for Shooting Sweetheart.

At Birmingham Assizes to-day Algernon Fumagalli, a young Italian, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude for attempting to murder Jessie Fleury. Accused had been keeping company with the young woman, but she desired to be free, and he, then, shot her with a revolver, inflicting serious injuries.

CHAPPED HANDS AND BLOOD-POISON.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S GREAT WINTER PERIL.

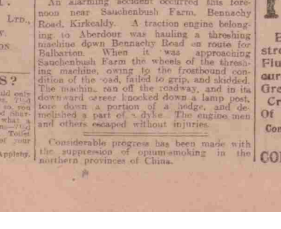
Chapped hands, sore lips, and cold sores genuine torments, are prevalent, painful, burning, and girls with sensitive skins often suffer untold misery, especially after a busy day at the kitchen sink or washing tub.

Perhaps that unpleasant "feel" which indicates the approach of the dreaded chapped hands is familiar to a good deal of women, and when plunging into hot water, while in the lower case the skin burns and smarts as severely as if it were scalded, and in the knuckles, bleeding begins, and if the wound remains open, cold, dirt, and disease germs get into it, painful inflammation and festering are set up. At this time of the year there is no more common cause of blood-poisoning than unclean and other workers than "chaps," and because this is a common daily experience during the Winter months there is all the more reason why it should be highly regarded. Serious swelling and blood-poisoning develop when least expected.

Those who have suffered under Winter conditions can be restored to a sound and healthy condition by the judicious application of Zam-Buk. This powerful herbal balm applied to hands exerts a delightful cooling and soothing influence, and quickly renders the skin soft, white, and strong again, so that it can withstand the coldest of weather. Zam-Buk is the ideal skin-protector, because its unique skin-healing powers are helped by the absolute purity and the great antiseptic value of its herbal ingredients. Zam-Buk contains none of the rancid animal fats and coarse mineral poisons, such as are found in ordinary ointments, salves, and cosmetics, which simply clog the pores of the skin with impurities. It is prepared solely from the sape and juices of rare healing herbs, and these saps are so refined that they are easily and naturally absorbed by the skin. Keen ever by you that needful box of Zam-Buk, and a nightly rubbing with the pure balm will prove an inestimable boon.

Miss A. Noakes, 17 Trinity Street, Harrow Green, Leytonstone, Essex, writes:—"My hands and arms were so badly inflamed and festering that I could not follow my occupation as shop assistant. I suffered in this manner for several winters, and during the past Winter the chilblains were worse than ever. The chilblains broke, and sores formed and spread about my arms. Skin creams and ointments were useless. A friend then strongly advised Zam-Buk, and I am grateful I followed her advice. The first night I used it was soothing effect. The rich balm also healed up all the sores and cracks and rid me of the chilblains. Zam-Buk has also brought me a strong, healthy skin on my hands and arms."

NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL FOR LONGFORGAN.



The dwellers of the pretty village of Longforgan are to-day the proud possessors of a handsome new public school. The edifice was formally opened this afternoon by Mr J. M. Wattie, His Majesty's Inspector of Schools.

The old school has been supplanted by an entirely new structure, which will provide ample accommodation for the increasing number of scholars in the building, with its splendid situation, will greatly enhance the beauty of the district, and will prove an excellent acquisition.

The school is built of spit faced rubble, harled stone, and covered with blue slates. Accommodation is provided for 200 pupils. The girls' entrance is at the west end and the boys' at the east end of the main central corridor. The corridor is eight feet wide, and is well lit from either end and from a central cupola. It is divided into three bays by similar arches, thus relieving the plainness of its lengths. The three front classrooms open off the corridor; the infants' room being to the west and the junior and senior rooms, which are subdivided by means of a movable glass partition, being the central and east rooms respectively. All are fitted with dual desks, and each room has a blackboard two feet deep immediately above the lining dado.

The cloak-rooms and teachers' room open off the north side of the main corridor, as are a large recreation room, a portion of the old school having been pulled down for this purpose. The latrines are also constructed out of a portion of the old buildings, and are situated behind the recreation room. The school is heated throughout on the low pressure hot water system. The architect for the building was Mr James Findlay, 33 Albert Square, Dundee.

MRS PANKHURST

RECEIVES "SETBACK" AT MONTREAL.

Women's Club of Montreal Ignores Her.

Montreal, Tuesday.

Mrs Pankhurst, the English woman suffrage leader, has arrived in Montreal to push the propaganda, but she has met with an unexpected set-back in the fact that the Women's Club of Montreal has not invited her to speak before it, nor will it join Mrs Pankhurst in her mission "to enfranchise women."

The club, which is quite a prominent one, numbers nearly as many French women as English amongst its members, and it is very largely the French section which dissents from extending an invitation to Mrs Pankhurst.
