

THE HERALD
MELBOURNE, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA
1 MARCH 1949
(page 5)

'Worst Man' Leaves £18.

Aleister Crowley, mystic and author of books on black magic, who was once expelled from Italy for practicing private rituals and rites, left only £18 in his will published today.

Crowley, who styled himself "the worst man in the world," died in December, 1947, aged 72. During his lifetime he inherited £30,000, travelled in the Orient, and ran a "temple" in the city of London, where he claimed to raise devils in its mirror-lined walls.'

He went bankrupt in 1934 after losing a libel action.