

Handwritten cuneiform script on a semi-circular tablet, organized into 12 horizontal rows. The script is a form of Akkadian cuneiform, likely from the Neo-Assyrian period. The characters are arranged in a regular grid, with each row containing approximately 10-12 signs. The tablet is mounted on a page with red horizontal lines separating the rows of text.