The INTERNATIONAL for December is one of the most striking yet published. "N Q O," a story of African magic by Chas. Beadle, is the best tale of life in Central Africa written for many a long year and the "Box of Counters" by Hanns Heinz Ewers is one of his best. The fourth of the "Simon Iff" stories maintains the high level of its predecessors. No one is any longer in doubt that "Simon Iff" is the greatest conception in detective literature that has ever been created. On no account miss this number.
